PROFILE

I have been working in video editing and production for six years, and in the industry for four. In my spare time I mainly focus on writing, as well as photography for events, such as festivals or weddings. I also try to take up any creative opportunity that'll give me the chance to learn something new.

PERSONAL INTERESTS

I enjoy writing, having successfully taken part in the Nanowrimo contest by writing a full 50,000+ word novel in under a month. I also have written several short and feature screenplays and currently writing a feature script.

I was a volunteer at my university TV station, SUSUTV, which lead me to take part in multiple short films and later establish Reel Opinions. Since its inception the project has become a true passion of mine, allowing me to express my love of Film and TV whilst branching out into new skills, such as podcasting, live broadcasting, and building a network of contacts.

Once took an online quiz and am now an ordained priest of Dudeism. Have never had a need for this, and probably never will.
