PERSONAL INTERESTS

As mentioned I enjoy writing, having written articles for a number of different publications ranging from interviews to news and reviews. I also have written several short and feature screenplays in my spare time.

I was a volunteer at my university TV station, SUSUTV, which lead me to take part in multiple short films and later establish Reel Opinions, a review website, with a group of friends. While, admittedly, never reaching popularity the site has proved a testing ground for us to hone our writing and editing as well as branching out into new skills, such as podcasting, live broadcasting, and building a network of contacts.

Once took an online quiz and I am now an ordained priest of Dudeism. I have never had a need for this, and probably never will.
